1. Request – implications of your reviews

We ask that you email us details of how, when, and where your CSG reviews have impacted in 2012. We are particularly interested in implications in terms of guidelines; links with stakeholders outside Cochrane, e.g. NICE guideline groups and registration as a guideline stakeholder; commentaries, summaries, editorials, and re-publication.

2. French translations of our abstracts

Our French Satellite Group and the French Cochrane Centre have kindly translated the abstracts of all of the updated and full CSG reviews. These are available to read at <http://summaries.cochrane.org/>

3. Results from literature searches – different formats

A word from Liz Doney, CSG Trials Search Co-ordinator: “My normal procedure when sending out search results to review teams is to send two files containing the same references, one formatted in RIS for use with EndNote, ProCite and other reference management tools, and one plain text file for those who would rather read the references on screen or print them out. It has been brought to my attention that the plain text file may not be displaying correctly on your screens, meaning that you have to scroll through the document both horizontally as well as vertically because the text lines are not wrapping correctly – for an example, see right. To correct this I will be sending files as Word documents rather than plain text files in future. But I would like review teams to be aware that I can be flexible about the format of search results, so if these formats don't suit you, or if you have any problems with them when I send results through to you, please let me know so I can help.”
